

Mr. Steve Danscuk

Branch Chief

FC-54 (Prevention Doctrine Branch)

United States Coast Guard

Steve Danscuk currently serves as the Chief, Prevention Doctrine Branch, Performance and Doctrine Division, CG Force Readiness Command, Alameda, CA. A prior CG active duty officer, he retired in 2004 after serving over 25 years on active duty in the Coast Guard with a career emphasis in marine safety. His current duties include managing a six-person staff in the development, management and updating of all operational doctrine related to Prevention operations.

Immediately prior to his current assignment, he served as Chief, Inspection/Investigation Branch, Prevention Division, CG Pacific Area. In that capacity he provided program level oversight for commercial vessel safety missions, developed policy and implementing guidance for the Maritime Transportation Security Act of 2002, and the International Ship and Port Facility Security Code (ISPS). He managed and led the development, implementation, measurement, and refinement of Pacific Area strategies and activities in support of the CG's performance goals to maximize vessel mobility within ports and waterways and to provide port safety/security in support of national defense. He served as the regional focal point for the Marine Transportation System (MTS) initiative, and coordinated regional policy and activities in support of CG Anti-Terrorism/Force Protection (AT/FP) initiatives. After the 9/11 events, he was extensively involved in Port Security/Maritime Security planning and response efforts.

In addition to numerous military awards, he is the recipient of the Vice President's Hammer Award, two Department of Transportation Secretary's awards (Team Award and Excellence), and two Department of Homeland Security Secretary's Team Awards for Excellence.
