

MARK MAJOR

Director General for the Environment, European Commission

Mr. Mark Major is a qualified Civil Engineer and also has an MBA from the American Graduate School of International Management. He has been a permanent official of the European Commission, based in Brussels, since 1999 - prior to that he was a senior transport planner for the City of Nottingham in the UK.

Before taking up his current post in DG Environment where he works on Transport and Climate Change he spent 6 years in DG Transport and Energy (dealing with freight transport policy). He is also a visiting professor at the China Academy of Transportation Studies (part of the Ministry of Communications in China). Mark speaks English, French and Spanish.